

SIA Licence Training Course

A volunteer at the Amington ARCH came up with an idea of getting funding for some security training. Partnering up with Sam Dodds from Bancroft Community Association as well as the Glascote ARCH they were able to obtain funding to do this. Staffordshire County Council provided funding for the project through grants from Adult & Community Learning who gave over £13,000 and Bridging the Gap funding of £5,000.

The training course has benefited around 40 people over a three month Period. The Training was done in four different groups with each group having between 9-12 people. The course ran for a week per group with four exams at the end of the week. Around 50% of the students who took part in the training were from Glascote Heath with others from Belgrave, Stoneydelph, Amington and other areas in Tamworth.

The last training course finished on the 1st July 2011 and to date, all have passed their exams. This should help many people into work.
